How it Affected His Conscience.

How it affected His Conscience.

A young man from the country, whose ideas of milk had been perverted and abused by contact with the cow in its native haunts, recently engaged himself with a proprietor of that animal engaged in supplying milk to customers in San Francisco. The second day the new hand resigned. He did not like the business and he must go. An investigation ended in showing that after weshing the cans the day before the water, as is usual, was left standing in them. Instead of the cans which he should have taken, he put these with their milky fluid into his wagon and started on his route. On coming back again, he learned his error. He resigned at once rather than face his customers. "Why, it was cheatin," he said—"the worse kind. I can go up to a cannon's month, and let 'em shoot me, but I never want to set foot in them houses where I carried 'round that water." His employer remonstrated. He had no time to hire another man, and it would greatly embarrass him to get one in time. But the young man was inflexible, "No no, he'd been brought up to be honest, and couldn't look 'em in the face again." "Well, I'll tell you what I'll de," said his employer, desperately, "I'll give you a couple of dollars to go round this once, and if you can't stand the abuse, you needn't try it again." After much urging the young man consented. He came back with a very curious look on his face. "Well,' said the employer, "you came out alive, after all, did you have a very hard racket?" "No, no," said the boy, "they did not say a word anywhere, except one old woman who told me she thought the brilk wis improving, it was a little bit racher vesterday morning." His employer was ad and salent, and the sure was and and salent, and the no she mought the racker of sterday morning." His employer was sad and silent, and the young man is still in the

"As it happened, the regular recitation rooms of the college were all in use, and we met him in a sat of pailor, carpeted, hung with pictures, and otherwise hand somely furnished, which was, I believe, called the "corporation room." We sat round a mahogany table, which was reported to be me into the dimners of the trustees, and the whole affair had the aspect of a friendly gathering in a private house, in which the study of German was the annial ment of the occasion. He began with furniar hallads, read them to us, and made us read them to him. Of course we soon committed them to memory without me ming to, and I think this was probably part of his theory. At the same time we were learning the paradigms by rote. His regular duty was the oversight of five or more instructors who were teaching French, German, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese to two or three hundred under graduates. We never knew when he might look in on a recitation and virtually conduct it. We were delighted to have him come. We all knew he was a poet, and were proud to have him in the college, but at the same time we respected him as a man of affairs."

An American Supper in Hungary.

An American Supper in Hungary.

One day we prepared an American feast for our Hungarian friends, who were curious to see what some of our dishes were like. "You must give us Boston beans and brown bread," said one who had heard of these Yankee delicacies, "and a pie," chimed in another. Our facilities were not of the best, but we set a supper that had the virtue of variety if no other. In vain we searched the china shops for individual butterplates and small sauce dishes, they were unknown, and for the first we substituted color-saucers, which are very similar in shape and size, but they proved a puzzle to our guests. They were quite shocked, too, to see the food set upon the table.

I grieve to state that they were not the table.

I grieve to state that they were not enthusiastic over this National meal, for it may seem to cast a reflection upon its cooks. Most gingarly they tasted our beautifully browned beans, remarking casually that it was a pity to so spoil beans, when they made so excellent a salad. They actually "turned up their noses" at our deherous brown bread, which they were sure was heavy; the beans, when they made so excellent a salad. They actually "turned up their noses" at our deheious brown bread, which they were sure was heavy; the naw dressed tomatoes they sent away, lest they posson the an, the chickens and they deigned to say might be good if the chicken had been left out. The American pie they thought might be catable, had it been baked in small pans, and without a top crust, and our crisp, deheat, warm rolls they refused to eat for twenty four hours, lest they perish at once. Our roset beef they declined because it had not been boiled, but the Saratoga potators! Budaspeth may yet erect to us a monument, because we introduced there. "Saratoga chips," for they tickled the Hungarian palate, and produced a remainent that satisfied us.

But, as a whole, our American feast storved them. This they frankly made known, and we adjourned to a neighboring Restoution to satisfy their hunger. This is what we had there. An overall soup, into of dumplings, a dish of green peas and tree boiled together, eaten with graded cheeser, small "turnover" pies, filled with some cabbige, pork and carry a circle a cooked with sour cream and magnetic, which is the reddest of red peppara, a salad dressed with sunflower oil, some somme s (rolls) stuffed with poppy seeds—the well with milk and homes, and, to end with, a cheese, but it, awain, garlic and capers.

The aidor shown in this pursuit by the Greeks and Romans is eiten used as an argument for our exaggerated acvotion to them at the present day. New Civilization in China.

The North China Herald gives an account of a new political association, which has been formed in Japan, its objects being as follows: (1) To uphold the dignity and pros perity of the imperial house and the welfare of the Japanese people: (2) to extend the power of the empire by the development of the national resources; (3) to encourage local government and check the inclination toward centralization: (4) to regulate the right to vote at elections in proportion to the progress of the people (5) to restrain participation in foreign intercourse and devote as much attention as possible to domestic affairs: (6) to abolish the irredeemable paper currency.

The summary now ready for circulation says: The winter wheat crop of the state has seldon, if ever, promised a more abundant yield, and the quality is excellent. The crop has been harvested in the southern and most of the central counties of the state, and new wheat is being marketed as fast as it can be threshed. Continned rain has interfered with the harvesting in central Hlinois, making it impossible, in many instances, to use reapers, binders, or headers, on account of the soft condition of the soil. As a result farmers have resorted to cradles, and more wheat has been gathered this season by this method than in the entire preceding ten years. There is danger of the grade of the crop being damaged by prouting before it can be success fully stacked. The average coudition in the northern division of the state is 47 per cent better than on July 1, 1881; in the central division 63 per cent better, and in the southern division 62 per cent better. The general condition in the state is 6 per cent above an average.

Warsen, Ind., July 9. -A case of fasting as remarkable as that of Dr. Tanner is reported from south of this city. A young lady of 22 has eaten little or nothing for nearly sixty days. Several years ago her stomach refused all food for a period of one month, and her appetite then returned. Two months since she was again seized with some derangement of the stomach, and during that time nonrishment has been administered by injections. She has enten on an iverage one cracker per week for two months, and though the most tempting viands have been offered ber, she efuses them all. The physicians in charge state that a change for the better in her condition must soon manifest itself or death will surely result. The patient is growing weak er steadily and the injections can not keep her alive much longer. She is very sensitive, and when asked whether her name might be mentioned in publishing an account of

The New Preacher. Elder Pinkerton and family, late of Necongregations. Of this new pastor, whom we cordially welcome among our people, the Falls City (Neb.) News, of June 25th, said:

Elder Pinkerton preached his fareweit sermon at the Christian church last evening, and himself and tamily left for his new home at the catur, 10, on Tue-slay morning. The sermon was one of the best that he ever preached here, being upon the "Inspiration of the liddle." This subject he handled beautifully, and, although not alming to answer any one's objection to it becompletely overturned and set at maight all the theories now extant denying that the liddle is an inspired volume. The elder has gone in and out before the penple of this entries for the four years last past, and by an upingla walk and chaste conversation had won the respect of the entire community, and there is not one who does not regret his departure. We commend him to the good people of becatur as a gentleman and a christian, will worthy of their esteem and confidence.

Dear Fellow Citizens: If you will only put the Democrats in power, they will never try to raise money for party purposes. They never did. It is wicked to do it. There is no law to punish dealers for representing their purchases as coming direct from ing their purchases as coming direct from importers and manufacturers, when the facts are against them. Nor for giving special reasons for marking down goods, after six weeks untiring labor, two Hunspecial reasons for marking labor, two himself per per cent. Below cost. But the dealer who indulges in such misrepresentations on paper will do so over the counter; consequently to show courtesy where it does not belong, or to affect a regard for the integrity of all competitors might seem very magnanimous were it not for these palpable evidences to the contrary. DECATUR, 1LL., JULY 10, 1882.

A House Lit by a Waterfall.

Much curiosity has been felt mong scientific men as to the result of Sir William Armstrong's experience in lighting his own house in Scotland by the electric light sup plied by the agency of a waterfall. Sir William Armstrong gave recently an interesting account to the institu tion of civil engineers, of his experience during nearly a year, and the remarks he made on the subject have just been privately circulated, in an ticipation of their publication in the ensuing quarterly volume of the pro

Engineers. The source of power employed is a fall or cascade nearly mile from Sir William Armstrong's louse, in connection with which he has erected a turbine, from which he

the arc system, Sir William Armstrong adopted the Swan incandes-ent arrangement. He has thirty pairs of lamps, each single lamp yielding as much light as an ordinary duplex kerosene lamp, which is usually estimated at twenty-live candles.

The lamps supplied by the company are somewhat variable in their durability, but with further experience this draw back will no doubt be overcome. The delicacy of the system is and has, therefore, no contaminating effect. It has very little heating ef-

The illumination is very brilliant and beautiful, the gases may be be a single of the same manuar stored and delivered in the same manner as coal-gas, and he believes that the system may be made economical by using wind or water powder to produce the gases. In view of the ravages of the phylloxers, which have so seriously interloxera, which have so seriously interfered with vine growing, a French agriculturist has sought to discover a substitute for the vine, and is said to have obtained very good results with a variety of red beet. This beet yields a wine which is said to be equal to many of Southern growth, and the plant has the advantage of being adapted to all soils and clumates. soils and climates. "finds" in Europe are reported. Near Caltanisetta, Sicily, several caverns have been found, which are evidently burial places dating from the period when the ancient Sicilians had already been ousted by the Italian tribes, but before the Greek colonization had begun. At Nordrup, Denmark, the remains of seven Nordrup, Denmark, the remains of seven human bodies have been found under a few feet of pumace stone, numerous bronze objects, gold rings, Roman glasses, mosaics, glass beads, etc., being also discovered among the remains. The light is directly produced by the driving of the dynamo-electric machine from this turbine, and the only cost beyond interest on machinery and renewals is the pay of the ASTRONOMICAL knowledge of the remarkable ring of small planets traveling between the orbit of Mars and Jupiter commenced with the first day of the present century, when Phazzi discovered the first of these objects, which he named Ceres. Other discoveries followed at irregular intervals until, in 1845, the number of these small planets—or asteroids, as they are usually called—was increased to five. Since that year the list has extended very rapidly, and 220 have now been discovered. No estimate can be tound of the total number of the asteroids. They are very small, and Severner has computed that their combined mass is probably that their combined mass is probably less than one-fourth of the carth's mass. From the size of Vesta, which is esti-mated to be 319 miles in diameter, they illustrated by the fact that while leather belts made in the usual way the Vienna Assistance in diameter, they dwindle to an unknown minuteness. Herr Hornstein has communicated to the Vienna Assistance in diameter, they were employed to drive the generator, each revolution produced a slight twinkle in the light when the joint diameter of over twenty-five miles, is of the belt ran over the pulley. To very small, and that probably all such obtain uniformity it was necessary to ber with a diameter less than five miles seems also to be very small, at least in use an endless belt, made like a flat chain, of leather links stamped out the inner parts of the asteroid zone next of the sheet and joined by pins; a Mars; in the outer region next Jupiter form of belt which gives a very regular motion.
